S

Tt

T, t /tiː/.
The twentieth letter of the modern English alphabet and the nineteenth of the ancient Roman one, corresp. to Greek tau, Hebrew taw. The sound normally represented by the letter is a voiceless alveolar plosive consonant. In modern English T also has the sound /ʃ/ in the unstressed combinations -tion, -tious, -tial, -tia, -tian, -tience, -tient, after any letter except s (as in nation, partial, patience, etc.), in which the /ʃ/ represents both the t and its following i. This pronunciation arises from a shift of the original Latin /t/ in these combinations to /ts/ then /s/, written c in French, but later in both French and English restored to t while still representing /s/ which, when combined with following i (pronounced as the semivowel /j/), became /ʃ/. After s, the original sound of T has remained, as in bestial, Christian, etc. More recently, T has developed the sound /tʃ/ when followed by u sounded /juː, jʊ, jʊə/ in the unstressed combinations -tual, -tue, -tuous, -ture, as in actual, nature, and ti after s has also sometimes become /tʃ/, as in question. T is usually silent between s and syllabic l or n, as in castle, fasten, etc., between s and m in Christmas, and between f and syllabic n in often, soften. (See also TH.) Pl. tees, T's, Ts. See also TAU noun[1], TEE noun[1].

▸I 1 The letter and its sound.
cross the t's = dot the i's* (and cross the t's) s.v. DOT verb. to a T exactly, properly, to a nicety.

2 The shape of the letter. ▸b ELECTRICITY. (Cap. T.) A network of three impedances that can be represented diagrammatically as a T in which the stem and each arm is an impedance.

theri- combining form see THERIO-.

theriac /ˈθɪərɪak/ noun & adjective. arch. LME.
[ORIGIN Latin theriaca: see TREACLE noun.]

▸A noun. An antidote to poison, esp. to the bite of a poisonous snake. Cf. TREACLE noun 1. LME.

▸†B adjective. = THERIACAL. rare. Only in LME.

theriacal /θɪˈrʌɪək(ə)l/ adjective. Now rare or obsolete. E17.
[ORIGIN from THERIAC + -AL[1].]
Pertaining to or of the nature of a theriac; antidotal.

therian /ˈθɪərɪən/ adjective & noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from mod. Latin Theria (see below), from Greek thēria pl. of thērion wild animal: see -AN.]
ZOOLOGY. ▸A adjective. Of or pertaining to the subclass Theria which includes all living mammals except monotremes (prototherians). M20.

▸B noun. A mammal of this subclass. L20.

therio- /ˈθɪərɪəʊ/ combining form. Before a vowel theri-.
[ORIGIN Greek, from thērion wild animal: see -O-.]
Of, pertaining to, or resembling an animal, esp. (in ZOOLOGY) a mammal. Cf. THERO-.

■ therian'thropic adjective of or pertaining to a god represented as combining animal and human forms U19. therioge'nology noun the branch of veterinary science which deals with the reproductive systems of animals L20. theri'olatry noun the worship of animals or of theriomorphic gods L19. †theriologic adjective (rare) of or pertaining to the systematic study of animals; zoological: only in M17.

theriomorph /ˈθɪərɪə(ʊ)mɔːf/ noun & adjective. E20.
[ORIGIN from THERIO- + -MORPH.]

▸A noun. 1 A representation of an animal form in art. E20.

2 = THEROMORPH. rare. E20.

▸B adjective. Having the form or characteristics of an animal. M20.

theriomorphic /θɪərɪəˈmɔːfɪk/ adjective. L19.
[ORIGIN formed as THERIOMORPH + -IC.]
Esp. of a god: having the form of an animal.

■ theriomorphism noun representation of a person or god in the form of an animal; ascription of animal characteristics to a person: E20.

therm /θəːm/ noun[1]. Pl. thermae /ˈθəːmiː/, (arch.) therms. M16.
[ORIGIN Old French thermes (pl.) from Latin thermae from Greek thermai hot baths, from thermē heat.]
Chiefly CLASSICAL ANTIQUITIES. A public bath. Also (rare), a hot spring. Usu. in pl.

therm /θəːm/ noun[2]. L19.
[ORIGIN from Greek thermos hot, thermē heat.]
PHYSICS. †1 = CALORIE (b). Only in L19.

2 A quantity of heat equal to 100,000 British thermal units or 1.055×10^8 joules, esp. as (formerly) used in the UK as the statutory unit of gas supplied. E20.

therm /θəːm/ noun[3] & verb. E18.
[ORIGIN Alt. of TERM noun.]

▸A noun. 1 A pedestal for a bust or statue, esp. of a god. E18.

2 A rectangular tapering leg or foot of a chair, table, etc., fashionable in the 18th cent. L18.

▸B verb trans. Make (a leg or foot of a chair, table, etc.) in a rectangular tapering form. L18.

therm /θəːm/ noun[4]. colloq. Now rare or obsolete. L18.
[ORIGIN Abbreviation.]
= THERMOMETER.

therm- combining form see THERMO-.

thermae noun pl. see THERM noun[1].

thermal /ˈθɔːm(ə)l/ adjective & noun. M18.
[ORIGIN French, from Greek thermē heat + -AL[1]; in sense 1 partly formed as THERM noun[1].]

▸A adjective. 1 Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of hot springs; (of a spring etc.) naturally hot or warm; having hot springs. M18.

2 gen. Of or pertaining to heat; determined, measured, caused, or operated by heat. M19. ▸b Of underwear etc.: promoting the retention of heat. L20.

– SPECIAL COLLOCATIONS: thermal agitation = thermal motion below. thermal analysis CHEMISTRY analysis of a substance by examination of the way its temperature falls on cooling or rises on heating. thermal barrier AERONAUTICS = heat barrier S.V. HEAT noun. thermal bremsstrahlung electromagnetic radiation produced by the thermal motion of charged particles in a plasma. thermal capacity the capacity of a body to store heat, measured by the quantity of heat required to raise its temperature one degree. thermal conductivity the rate at which heat passes through a substance, expressed as the amount of heat that flows per unit time through unit area with a temperature gradient of one degree per unit distance. thermal cycle a cycle in which the temperature of a substance rises or falls and then returns to its initial value. thermal death point the lowest temperature at which a micro-organism can be killed by heat exposure under specified conditions. thermal diffusion diffusion occurring as a result of the thermal motion of atoms or molecules, esp. as a technique for separating gaseous compounds of different isotopes of an element (which diffuse at different rates in a temperature gradient). thermal diffusivity the thermal conductivity of a substance divided by the product of its density and its specific heat capacity. thermal efficiency the efficiency of an engine measured by the ratio of the work done by it to the heat supplied to it. thermal equilibrium a state in which no net gain, loss, or transfer of heat occurs. thermal imaging the technique of using the heat given off by objects or substances to produce an image of them or to locate them. thermal inertia resistance to change of temperature. thermal lance = thermic lance. thermal motion motion of atoms or other particles due to their thermal energy. thermal neutron a neutron which is in thermal equilibrium with its environment (in contrast to a slow neutron). thermal noise ELECTRONICS electrical fluctuations arising from the random thermal motion of electrons. thermal paper heat-sensitive paper used in thermal printers. thermal pollution the production of heat, or the discharge of warm water, esp. into a river or lake, on a scale that is potentially harmful ecologically. thermal printer a printer having a matrix of fine pins as the printhead, which are selectively heated to form a character on heat-sensitive paper. thermal radiation: emitted (esp. as infrared radiation) from the surface of a body and dependent on its temperature. thermal reactor a nuclear reactor in which the fission process relies upon thermal neutrons. thermal resistance resistance to the leakage of heat energy, esp. from an electrical conductor. thermal runaway ELECTRONICS a dramatic or destructive rise in the temperature of a transistor as a result of an increase in its temperature causing an increase in the current through it, and vice versa. thermal shock a sudden large application of heat energy. thermal speed the speed characteristic of a thermal neutron. thermal storage a system of storing water at high pressure and temperature in vessels above the boilers during off-peak hours in electricity generating stations; also used attrib. to designate appliances which store heat in other ways. thermal unit a unit of heat; British thermal unit: see BRITISH adjective. thermal velocity = thermal speed above.

▸B noun. 1 A rising current of relatively warm air, used by gliders and birds to gain height. M20.

2 In pl. Thermal underwear. L20.

■ thermalling, -aling noun soaring in thermals or warm rising air currents; the production of thermals: M20. thermally adverb in a thermal manner; by means of heat; as regards heat: L19.

thermalize /ˈθəːm(ə)lʌɪz/ verb. Also -ise. M20.
[ORIGIN from THERMAL adjective + -IZE.]
PHYSICS. 1 verb trans. Bring into thermal equilibrium with the environment. M20.

2 verb intrans. Attain thermal equilibrium with the environment. M20.

■ thermali'zation noun the process of thermalizing M20.

thermanaesthesia /ˌθəːmanɪsˈθiːzjə/ noun. Also -anes-. L19.
[ORIGIN from THERM(O- + ANAESTHESIA.]
MEDICINE. Absence or loss of heat-perception; insensitivity to heat and cold.

thermantidote /θəːˈmantɪdəʊt/ noun. M19.
[ORIGIN from Greek thermē heat + ANTIDOTE noun.]
A thing which counteracts the effects of heat; spec. (a) in the Indian subcontinent, a rotating fan fixed in a window-opening within a dampened matting of cuscus roots; (b) (rare) a cooling medicine.

thermic /ˈθəːmɪk/ adjective. M19.
[ORIGIN from Greek thermē heat + -IC.]
Of or pertaining to heat; of the nature of heat; = THERMAL adjective 2.

thermic lance a steel pipe packed with steel wool through which a jet of suitable gas may be passed in order to burn away metal, concrete, etc., using heat generated by the burning of the pipe.

■ thermical adjective (rare) = THERMIC M19. thermically adverb (rare) thermally L19. thermics noun (rare) the branch of science that deals with heat. thermotics M19.

Thermidor /θəːmɪˈdɔː, foreign tɛrmidɔːr/ noun. E19.
[ORIGIN French, from Greek thermē heat + dōron gift.]

1 The eleventh month of the French Republican calendar (introduced 1793), extending from 19 July to 17 August. E19.

2 A moderate reaction following a revolution. M20.

– PHRASES: lobster Thermidor: see LOBSTER noun[1].

– NOTE: Thermidor was the month in 1794 in which Robespierre fell and the period of extreme repression and bloodshed ended.

Thermidorian /θəːmɪˈdɔːrɪən/ noun & adjective. E19.
[ORIGIN French thermidorien, from THERMIDOR + -ien -IAN.]

▸A noun. 1 FRENCH HISTORY. A person taking part in the overthrow of Robespierre on the 9th Thermidor (27 July) 1794. E19.

2 A moderate opponent of a revolutionary movement; a counter-revolutionary. L20.

▸B adjective. 1 Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of the month of Thermidor. L19.

2 FRENCH HISTORY. Of or pertaining to the Thermidorians (sense A.1 above). L19.

3 Of, pertaining to, or designating a moderate reaction following a revolution; counter-revolutionary. M20.

thermion /ˈθəːmɪɒn/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from THERM(O- + ION.]
PHYSICS. An electron or ion emitted from a surface at high temperature.

thermionic /θəːmɪˈɒnɪk/ adjective. E20.
[ORIGIN from THERMION + -IC.]
PHYSICS. Of, pertaining to, or employing electrons emitted from a hot, esp. an incandescent, surface.

thermionic emission: of electrons from a heated surface. thermionic valve an electronic device consisting of an evacuated envelope containing two or more electrodes, such that a current can flow only in one direction as a result of thermionic emission from one electrode.

■ thermionically adverb E20. thermionics noun the branch of science that deals with thermionic emission E20.

thermistor /θəːˈmɪstə/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN Contr. of therm(al res)istor.]
A small piece of semiconducting material the resistance of which falls with increasing temperature, enabling it to be used for sensitive temperature measurement and control.

thermite /ˈθəːmʌɪt/ noun. E20.
[ORIGIN from THERM(O- + -ITE[1].]
A mixture of finely divided aluminium with a metal oxide, esp. an iron oxide, which produces a very high temperature (c 3000°C) when ignited.

– COMB.: thermite process (a) the reduction of finely divided oxides of iron or other metals by an exothermic reaction with finely divided aluminium; (b) thermite welding; thermite welding fusion welding in which the heat and the weld metal are produced by the thermite process.

thermo- /ˈθəːməʊ/ combining form. Before a vowel also therm-.
[ORIGIN Greek, from thermos hot, thermē heat: see -O-.]
Of, pertaining to, or connected with heat or temperature.

■ thermoa'cidophile noun (BIOLOGY) an archaebacterium capable of surviving in conditions of high temperature and high acidity L20. thermo'baric adjective [Greek baros heavy] pertaining to or designating a very large fuel–air bomb which ignites into a fireball when detonated M20. thermo'chromic adjective pertaining to or displaying thermochromism E20. thermo'chromism noun the phenomenon whereby certain substances undergo a reversible change of colour or shade when heated or cooled E20. thermochromy noun = THERMOCHROMISM E20. thermocline noun a temperature gradient; esp. an abrupt temperature gradient occurring in a body of water; a layer of water marked by such a gradient, the water above and below being at different temperatures: L19. thermocoagu'lation noun (MEDICINE) the coagulation of tissue, esp. in the brain, by means of heat, as a form of treatment M20. thermocom'pression noun the simultaneous application of heat and pressure, esp. in the making of solid-state devices M20. thermo'duric adjective (BIOLOGY) (of bacteria etc.) capable of surviving high temperatures, esp. those of pasteurization E20. thermo-e'lastic adjective of or pertaining to elasticity in connection with heat E20. thermoforming noun the process of heating a thermoplastic material and shaping it in a mould M20. thermogalva'nometer noun a thermoelectric instrument for measuring small electric currents M19. thermo'genesis noun the generation or production of heat, esp. in an animal body L19. thermoge'netic, thermo'genic adjectives of or pertaining to thermogenesis; produced by or producing heat: L19. thermogravi'metric adjective of or pertaining to thermogravimetry M20. thermogra'vimetry noun (PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY) the chemical analysis of substances by measuring changes in weight as a function of increasing temperature M20. thermo'haline adjective [Greek halinos of salt] OCEANOGRAPHY of or pertaining to the temperature and salinity of seawater M20. thermo-'halocline noun (OCEANOGRAPHY) a narrow layer of water separating layers of differing temperature and salinity M20. thermo-'hardening adjective thermosetting M20. thermo-junction noun the junction of two metals in a thermocouple L19. thermokarst noun (PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY) topography in which the eventual melting of permafrost has produced hollows, hummocks, etc., reminiscent of karst M20. thermo'labile adjective liable to be destroyed or denatured when heated (opp. thermostable) E20. thermola'bility noun thermolabile quality E20. thermolumi'nescence noun luminescence resulting from the release at elevated temperatures of energy accumulated in a solid over time (by slow irradiation etc.), esp. as a method of dating ancient ceramic and other materials L19. thermolumi'nescent adjective characterized by or pertaining to thermoluminescence L19. thermo'lysin noun (BIOCHEMISTRY) a heat-stable proteolytic enzyme found in some thermophilic bacteria M20. thermomag'netic adjective pertaining to or involving thermomagnetism E19. thermo'magnetism noun magnetism caused or modified by the action of heat E19. thermome'chanical adjective both thermal and mechanical, involving both thermal and mechanical effects or (esp.) treatment of metals; spec. in PHYSICS, designating or pertaining to an effect observed in superfluid liquid helium (helium II) in which the liquid tends to flow from a region of lower to one of higher temperature: M20. thermo-'multiplier noun (now rare or obsolete) a thermopile M19. thermo'nastic adjective (BOTANY) of, pertaining to, or exhibiting thermonasty M20. thermonasty noun (BOTANY) (a) nastic movement, esp. the opening or closing of a flower, caused by a change in temperature M20. thermo'neutral adjective (a) BIOLOGY (of an environment or its temperature) such that an organism is in thermal equilibrium without thermoregulation; (b) CHEMISTRY (of a reaction) accompanied by neither the absorption nor the emission of heat: M20. thermoneu'trality noun the condition of being thermoneutral L19. thermophone noun a device in which a sound pressure wave is generated by the heating effect of an electric current, used to calibrate microphones L19. thermo'physical adjective of or pertaining to thermophysics M20. thermophysics noun the branch of physics that deals with the physical properties of substances as they relate to (esp. high) temperature M20. thermopile noun a series of thermocouples closely packed together to combine their effect, esp. arranged for measuring small quantities of radiant heat M19. thermopower noun (ELECTRICITY) the thermoelectric electromotive force developed by a substance per degree difference in temperature M20. thermoreceptor noun (PHYSIOLOGY) a nerve ending that is sensitive to heat and cold M20. thermo'remanence noun thermoremanent magnetism M20. thermo'remanent adjective pertaining to or designating magnetism acquired, esp. by rock, as a result of cooling or solidifying in a magnetic field M20. thermoscope noun †(a) a thermometer; (b) any of various devices for indicating (esp. small) differences of temperature: M17. thermo'scopic adjective of, pertaining to, or acting as a thermoscope M18. thermo'sensitive adjective pertaining to or possessing sensitivity to heat E20. thermosensi'tivity noun sensitivity to heat E20. thermo-siphon noun a siphon attachment by which the circulation in a system of hot-water pipes is increased or induced M19. thermosta'bility noun the quality of being thermostable E20. thermo'stabilized adjective (of food, esp. packaged food) heat-treated to delay any deterioration in quality M20. thermo'stable adjective retaining its character or active quality at moderately high temperatures (opp. thermolabile) E20. thermo-therapy noun a method of (esp. medical) treatment involving the application of heat L19. thermo'tolerant adjective (of an organism) tolerant of but not requiring high temperature for growth M20.

thermochemistry /θəːməʊ'kɛmɪstrɪ/ noun. M19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + CHEMISTRY.]
The branch of chemistry that deals with the relation of heat to chemical substances, esp. with the quantities of heat evolved or absorbed during chemical reactions.
■ thermo'chemical adjective L19. thermo chemically adverb by means of or with reference to thermochemistry E20. thermochemist noun L19.

thermocouple /'θəːməʊkʌp(ə)l/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + COUPLE noun.]
A thermoelectric device for measuring temperature, consisting of two different metals joined at two points so that one junction develops a voltage dependent on the amount by which its temperature differs from that of the other end of each metal.

thermode /'θəːməʊd/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + -ODE².]
Chiefly PHYSIOLOGY. An object that is introduced into a medium, esp. living tissue, as a means by which heat may enter or leave it.

thermodynamic /ˌθəːməʊdʌɪ'namɪk/ adjective. M19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + DYNAMIC adjective.]
Of or pertaining to thermodynamics; involving the interconversion of heat and another form of energy, esp. mechanical energy.
■ thermodynamical adjective (rare) = THERMODYNAMIC M19. thermodynamically adverb as regards thermodynamics L19. thermodynamicist noun an expert in or student of thermodynamics L19.

thermodynamics /ˌθəːməʊdʌɪ'namɪks/ noun. M19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + DYNAMICS: see -ICS.]
The branch of physical science that deals with the relations between heat and other forms of energy (mechanical, electrical, chemical, etc.).
first law of thermodynamics the physical law to the effect that in a closed system the sum of all forms of energy remains constant (conserved), and that in an open system the increase of internal energy is equal to the sum of the work done on the system and the heat added to it. second law of thermodynamics the physical law stating that heat may not of itself pass from a cooler to a hotter body, entropy always being increased during an irreversible process. third law of thermodynamics Nernst's heat theorem (see NERNST noun 3).

thermoelectric /ˌθəːməʊɪ'lɛktrɪk/ adjective & noun. E19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + ELECTRIC adjective.]
▸ A adjective. 1 Of or pertaining to thermoelectricity; characterized by an electric current or potential produced by difference of temperature; operated by a current so produced. E19.
2 Of or involving both heat and electricity. L19.
▸ †B noun. A substance exhibiting thermoelectric effects. Only in 19.
■ thermoelectrical adjective = THERMOELECTRIC M19. thermoelectrically adverb L19.

thermoelectricity /ˌθəːməʊɪlɛk'trɪsɪtɪ/ noun. E19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + ELECTRICITY.]
Electricity generated in a body by difference of temperature in its parts; esp. an electric current produced in a closed circuit composed of two dissimilar metals when one of the points of union is kept at a temperature different from that of the rest of the circuit.

Thermogene /'θəːmədʒiːn/ noun. Also t-. E20.
[ORIGIN French thermogène THERMOGENIC adjective.]
(Proprietary name for) medicated cotton wool.

thermogram /'θəːməgram/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + -GRAM.]
1 A diagram recording variations in temperature; the trace produced by a recording thermometer. L19.
2 A photograph or image produced by the action of natural infrared radiation emanating from the subject. M20.

thermograph /'θəːməgrɑːf/ noun. M19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + -GRAPH.]
1 An image or tracing produced by the action of heat, esp. infrared radiation, on a prepared surface; now usu. spec., = THERMOGRAM 2. Also, an apparatus for producing such images. M19.
2 = THERMOGRAM 1. M19.
3 A recording thermometer. L19.

thermographic /θəːmə(ʊ)'grafɪk/ adjective. M19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + -GRAPHIC.]
Of, pertaining to, or obtained by a thermograph or thermography.
■ thermo'graphically adverb M19.

thermography /θəː'mɒgrəfɪ/ noun. M19.
[ORIGIN formed as THERMOGRAPHIC + -GRAPHY.]
1 A process of writing, drawing, printing, etc. in which the image is formed or developed by the influence of heat; spec. a printing technique in which a resinous powder is dusted on to wet ink and fused by heating to produce a raised impression. M19.
2 The taking or use of infrared thermograms, esp. to detect tumours. M20.

Thermolactyl /θəːmə(ʊ)'laktʌl, -tʌɪl/ noun. Also t-. M20.
[ORIGIN French, from thermo- THERMO- + lactyl LACTYL.]
(Proprietary name for) a man-made fibre and fabric used for light thermal underwear.

thermology /θəː'mɒlədʒɪ/ noun. Now rare. M19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + -LOGY.]
The branch of physics that deals with heat.
■ thermo'logical adjective M19.

thermolysis /θə'mɒlɪsɪs/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from THERMO- + -LYSIS.]
1 CHEMISTRY. The decomposition or dissociation of a compound by the action of heat. L19.
2 PHYSIOLOGY. The dissipation or dispersion of heat from the body. Now rare. L19.

SULPHUR noun E20. thio'carbamate noun (CHEMISTRY) a salt of the ion NH_2CSO^- or a substituted derivative of this ion L19. thio'carbamide noun (CHEMISTRY) = THIOUREA L19. thiochrome noun (BIOCHEMISTRY) a yellow basic solid, $C_{12}H_{14}N_4OS$, formed by oxidation of thiamine and having a strong blue fluorescence in solution M20. thi'octic adjective [OCT(ANO)IC]: thioctic acid (CHEMISTRY), any of a series of isomeric fatty acids whose molecules contain eight carbon atoms and a ring formed by a disulphide group; esp. = LIPOIC acid: M20. thio'cyanate noun (CHEMISTRY) a salt or ester of thiocyanic acid L19. thiocy'anic adjective: thiocyanic acid (CHEMISTRY), an unstable liquid, N·CSH, with a penetrating odour, the parent acid of thiocyanates L19. thiodi'glycol noun (CHEMISTRY) a dihydric alcohol, $(CH_2CH_2OH)_2S$, used as a solvent and in chemical syntheses, including that of mustard gas L19. thio'ester noun (CHEMISTRY) the thio analogue of an ester, containing the group ·CO·S· M20. thio-'ether noun (CHEMISTRY) a compound in which an atom of sulphur is bonded to two organic radicals. L19. thio'guanine noun (BIOCHEMISTRY) a cytotoxic mercapto derivative of guanine, used to treat leukaemia (also more fully 6-thioguanine) M20. thio'ketone noun (CHEMISTRY) a thio analogue of a ketone, having the general formula RR′C=S (where R and R′ are alkyl groups) L19. Thiokol noun (proprietary name for) any of various polysulphide rubbers and liquids M20. thio'mersal noun [MER(CURY, SAL(ICYLATE)] a bacteriostatic and fungistatic organomercury compound, $C_9H_9O_2SHgNa$, used as a medical disinfectant and as a preservative for biological products M20. thionazin /-ˈneɪzɪn/ noun [PYR)AZINE] an organophosphorus compound, $C_8H_{13}N_2O_3PS$, used as an agricultural insecticide and nematocide M20. thionine noun a brownish-black dye, $C_{12}H_9N_3S$, used esp. as a stain in microscopy L19. thionyl noun (CHEMISTRY) the divalent group or radical :SO M19. thiophanate /θʌɪˈɒfəneɪt/ noun [formed as ALLOPHANE + -ATE[1]] a colourless crystalline compound, $C_6H_4(NH{\cdot}CS{\cdot}NH{\cdot}COOC_2H_5)_2$, used chiefly as a veterinary anthelmintic; thiophanate-methyl, an analogue of thiophanate containing methyl in place of the ethyl groups, used as a systemic fungicide, esp. in agriculture: L20. thiophene noun [after BENZENE] CHEMISTRY a colourless flammable liquid, C_4H_4S, whose molecule is a five-membered ring and which occurs in coal tar and petroleum L19. thio'phenol noun (CHEMISTRY) a thiol having an ·SH group attached directly to a benzene ring (cf. thio-alcohol): spec. the simplest of these, C_6H_5SH, a colourless liquid smelling of garlic: L19. thiore'doxin noun [REDOX] BIOCHEMISTRY any of several globular proteins which participate in intracellular electron transfer by means of the sulphydryl groups of cysteine residues M20. thioridazine /-'dɛrɪzɪn/ noun [PIPE)RID(INE, AZINE] PHARMACOLOGY a phenothiazine derivative, $C_{21}H_{26}N_2S_2$, used as a tranquillizer, esp. in the treatment of mental illness M20. thiosemi carbazide noun (CHEMISTRY) the thio analogue, $NH_2{\cdot}CS{\cdot}NH{\cdot}NH_2$, of semicarbazide, used esp. as a rodenticide and as a stabilizer in organic liquids L19. thiosemi carbazone noun (CHEMISTRY) a thio analogue of a semicarbazone, the oxygen of the latter being replaced by sulphur E20. thio'sulphate noun (CHEMISTRY) any of the salts or esters of thiosulphuric acid, several of which are used in bleaching and photography (formerly called hyposulphite) L19. thiosul'phuric adjective: thiosulphuric acid (CHEMISTRY), an unstable acid, $H_2S_2O_3$, which is known only in solution and is the parent acid of thiosulphates L19. thio'tepa noun (PHARMACOLOGY) the thio analogue of tepa, used to treat cancer M20. thio'uracil noun (CHEMISTRY & PHARMACOLOGY) a mercapto derivative of uracil, sometimes used to inhibit thyroid secretion E20.

thioglycollic /ˌθʌɪəʊglʌɪ'kɒlɪk/ adjective. Also -colic. L19.
[ORIGIN from THIO- + GLYCOLLIC.]
CHEMISTRY. thioglycollic acid, a colourless toxic liquid with a strong odour, $HSCH_2COOH$, which is a reducing agent used esp. in the pharmaceutical industry, in hair treatment products, and in analytical tests for ferric iron; mercaptoethanoic acid.
■ thio'glycollate noun a salt or ester of thioglycollic acid L19.

thioindigo /θʌɪəʊ'ɪndɪgəʊ/ noun. Pl. -os. E20.
[ORIGIN from THIO- + INDIGO.]
A red vat dye in which the two imino groups of indigotin are replaced by sulphur atoms. Also, = THIOINDIGOID noun.
■ thioindigoid noun & adjective (a) noun any of a class of mainly orange, red, and violet vat dyes that are substituted derivatives of thioindigo, used esp. in textile printing; (b) adjective of the nature of a thioindigoid: M20.

thiol /'θʌɪɒl/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from THIO- + -OL.]
CHEMISTRY. 1 The group ·SH, which is the sulphur analogue of the functional group of alcohols. Also called sulphydryl. Usu. in comb. L19.
2 A compound containing an ·SH group; a mercaptan. E20.

thion- combining form see THIO-.

thionic /θʌɪ'ɒnɪk/ adjective. L19.
[ORIGIN formed as THIO- + -IC (with -n- inserted or retained from Greek theion).]
CHEMISTRY. thionic acid, any of a series of acids including dithionic acid and related acids represented by the formula $HSO_3(S)_nHSO_3$. Freq. with prefix indicating total number of sulphur atoms, as trithionic, tetrathionic, etc.
■ thionate noun (CHEMISTRY) a salt or ester of a thionic acid L19.

thiopental /θʌɪə(ʊ)'pɛnt(ə)l, -tal/ noun. Chiefly US. M20.
[ORIGIN from THIOPENTONE: see -AL².]
PHARMACOLOGY. = THIOPENTONE. Also thiopental sodium.

thiopentone /θʌɪə'pɛntəʊn/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN from THIO- + PENT(OBARBIT)ONE.]
PHARMACOLOGY. A sulphur analogue of pentobarbitone; (more fully thiopentone sodium) the sodium salt of this, used as a rapid-acting general anaesthetic and hypnotic.
— NOTE: A proprietary name for this drug is PENTOTHAL.

thiourea /ˌθʌɪəʊjʊ rɪːə/ noun. L19.
[ORIGIN from THIO- + UREA.]
CHEMISTRY. A crystalline compound, $SC(NH_2)_2$, used esp. in chemical synthesis, in photographic processes, and as a mould inhibitor. Also called thiocarbamide.

thir /ðəː/ pronoun & adjective. Scot. & N. English. ME.
[ORIGIN Perh. from Old Norse þeir those.]
= THESE pronoun & adjective.

thiram /'θʌɪram/ noun. M20.
[ORIGIN Abbreviation of the systematic name: see THIURAM.]
CHEMISTRY. A sulphur-containing compound used as a fungicide and seed protectant; tetramethylthiuram disulphide, $(CH_3)_2N{\cdot}CS{\cdot}S_2{\cdot}SC{\cdot}N(CH_3)_2$.

third /θəːd/ adjective, noun, & adverb (ordinal numeral).
[ORIGIN Old English (late Northumbrian) þirdd(a), -e, þridda = Old Frisian thredda, Old Saxon þriddio, Old High German dritto (Dutch derde, German dritte), Old Norse þriði, Gothic þridja, from Germanic from Indo-European: cf. Latin tertius, Greek tritos.]
